Use of Technology
Graduate courses in the MFA Program require technology skills. Dance MFA students are expected to demonstrate and apply these skills as connected to professional performance, choreographic research, and pedagogical strategies. Students are expected to have proficiency in many software applications, including word processing, internet, and spreadsheet applications. Students should also be able to access and interpret internet information. Students must be able to produce written and visual documents that are clear, well-organized, and properly formatted. Given the nature of these courses, any student with a documented learning disability should contact the Office for Student Financial Aid to determine the assistance that may be available.
