

LEARNING OUTCOMES: HISTORY, PHD

Learning Outcomes for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in History

1. Field expertise: broad, deep, and critical knowledge of key areas of chosen study, in both selected chronological-geographic fields and comparative thematic fields.
2. Methodological knowledge: understanding and mastery of disciplinary and interdisciplinary methods and concepts.
3. Research, writing, and dissemination: Experience and accomplishment in scholarly research based on primary sources, analytical writing, and presenting this work in print and oral presentation.
4. Teaching: Pedagogical training and experience.
5. Professional development: preparation for the diverse career expectations and possibilities in academia and varied institutions in the public and private sectors.