ARCHITECTURAL STUDIES MINOR

for the Undergraduate Minor in Architectural Studies

The Minor in Architectural Studies introduces non-architecture undergraduate students to an overview of architecture history, theory, and design. This minor can complement any discipline and is the only undergraduate minor offered by the School of Architecture.

Admission

Students must declare their intentions in the spring and be admitted to the program for the fall to pursue the Minor in Architectural Studies. Admission to the minor will be processed by the School of Architecture Undergraduate Programs Office. Students may enter the Minor in Architectural Studies until such time that allows the completion of the minor before graduating in their major area of study.

Advising

Advising of students in the minor will be conducted by the advisors in the Undergraduate Programs Office of the School of Architecture.
