The Department of English sponsors the following majors:

The English Major (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/english-concentration) is organized to provide instruction in literature in English, literary theory and criticism, the English language, English education, film, cultural studies, and closely related fields. Students who major in English have many choices in planning a field of study, but the basic program is designed to accommodate students who seek to broaden their familiarity with our literature, to intensify their language skills for personal and professional reasons, and to learn more about literature's relationship to the other arts, history, philosophy, and the modern languages.

The English Teaching Concentration (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/english-teaching-concentration) leads to certification to teach in Secondary School. Coursework in this concentration is largely similar to the English Concentration and based on the same core goals as the English Concentration. Students working toward earning a teaching certificate are guided toward additional coursework focused on language and composition.

The Creative Writing Major (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/creative-writing) combines small workshops (poetry, fiction, nonfiction) and a variety of literature courses for a strong but flexible program of study that develops students’ analytical and creative skills and prepares them for work of graduate study in any number of fields.

The department also offers two undergraduate minors- English (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/english-minor) and Creative Writing (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/creative-writing-minor).

The Department of English offers the following majors:

English Allows students to focus on literatures in English and the practices of literary theory and criticism, while encouraging them to explore the English language, expository and creative writing, writing studies, film, and other closely-related fields. Students select from the following:

- Major in English (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/english-concentration)
- Major in English, English Teaching Concentration (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/english-teaching-concentration)
- Major in Creative Writing (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/creative-writing)

Minor in Creative Writing (http://catalog.illinois.edu/undergraduate/ias/academic-units/english/creative-writing-minor)

ENGL 208 Victorian Literature and Culture credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/208)
While Queen Victoria was on the throne (1837-1910), Britain became a world power, but often looked backwards to the lovely worlds of the past. Many of the era’s great literary works reflect this tension between realism and romance: between the realism of being a poor governess and the romance of finding true love in Jane Eyre; the tragedy of losing your best friend and the hope of emotional survival in In Memoriam; the practical work of building a useful device and the fantasy of visiting the dystopian future in The Time Machine. Literature studied in this class will include poetry, prose, drama, and fiction, possibly including works by Charlotte Brontë, Charles Dickens, Elizabeth Gaskell, Mary Seacole, Thomas Carlyle, Alfred Tennyson, Robert Browning, Christina Rossetti, William Morris, Oscar Wilde, H.G. Wells, Olive Schreiner, or George Bernard Shaw. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 209 Early British Literature and Culture credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/209)
This course surveys more than a thousand years of British literature from the early Middle Ages through the Renaissance and well into the eighteenth century. But what does “British literature” really mean, especially in the context of an island archipelago populated by multiple nations (England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales) and repeatedly subjected to foreign rule (whether by the successive invasion of Anglo-Saxon, Viking, and Norman forces or the dynastic imposition of Dutch and German monarchs)? The range of texts we thus characterize as "early British literature" is staggering, and part of our goal in this course will simply be to appreciate the sheer volume and breadth of written work created in Britain and Ireland between the eighth and eighteenth centuries. We will do this through a necessarily selective sampling of historical periods, languages, and genres. Our authors will range from the famous (e.g., Chaucer, Shakespeare, and Milton) to the lesser-known (e.g., Marie de France, Lady Mary Wroth, and Eliza Haywood) to the unknown (e.g., the anonymous Beowulf-poet). Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement and ENGL 200. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 210 British Literature from 1800 to the Present credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/210)
This course covers literature written during a tumultuous time in British history: first the Industrial Revolution, which created new forms of wealth from iron and steam; then the rise of the British Empire to global power; then the twentieth-century shocks of World War and decolonization. British writers responded to these transformations with passionate romantic novels, with thoughtful poems meditating on war and empire, and with visions of a more inclusive post-imperial society. Writers covered in this survey course may include Jane Austen, William Wordsworth, Mary Shelley, Charlotte Brontë, Charles Dickens, Robert Browning, Oscar Wilde, H.G. Wells, Virginia Woolf, T.S. Eliot, Philip Larkin, Hanif Kureishi, Zadie Smith, or Kazuo Ishiguro. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 211 Introduction to Modern African Literature credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/211)
Same as AFST 210 and CWL 210. See AFST 210. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts Cultural Studies - Non-West

ENGL 213 Modernist Literature and Culture credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/213)
This study of literature, philosophy, visual and performing arts, social criticism, and popular sciences of the Anglo-American Modern period (1880-1920), with attention to broad cultural issues. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 216 Legends of King Arthur credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/216)
Arthurian myth and legend is one of the most enduring literary traditions of Western Europe, and the characters of Arthur, Merlin, Guinevere, Lancelot, Gawain and Mordred were as popular in the Middle Ages as they are today. Originating in early medieval Wales, the legends traveled through England to France and Germany and throughout the modern world. Students will study the development of the Arthurian tradition in chronicles, poetry, romances, lais, and fabliaux, comparing variations across cultural and historical boundaries. Same as CWL 216 and MDVL 216. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 218 Introduction to Shakespeare credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/218)
Representative readings of Shakespeare’s drama and poetry in the context of his age, with emphasis on major plays; selections vary from section to section. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 219 Literature and Medicine credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/219)
Introduction to the interchange between the medical and literary imaginations – how diseases, bodies, and minds get written about and represented culturally. The premise of the course is that ideas and experiences concerning our health are always mediated through the literature we read, the films we watch, and the stories we tell our doctors and that they tell us. Our focus will be on how literature and film have played and continue to play a crucial role in understanding health on local, national, and global scales.

ENGL 220 Literature and Science credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/220)
Explores the mutual influences of science and literature in some key literary and non-literary texts. Covers scientific texts, literary works, and cultural theory to explore how and why scientific knowledge is intimately linked to literature. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts
ENGL 221 Speculative Futures credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/221)
Introduces majors and non-majors to several important conversations arising from the expansive genre of speculative fiction. In this course students will explore some of the most profound, disturbing, and downright bizarre imaginings of the future that human beings have generated. Climate change, ageing, fascist regimes, reproductive rights, technological failures, scientific advancements, and apocalypse are just a few of the possible topics for this class. Course materials will be drawn from literary works, contemporary and historical scientific developments, and cultural theory to explore how and why speculative futures are linked to specific cultural contexts, technologies, and social schemes.

ENGL 222 Jewish American and US Minority Literatures in Dialogue credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/222)

This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts

ENGL 247 The British Novel credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/247)
A study of some of the more noteworthy and influential writers of the last two hundred and fifty years. The course traces the development of the novel as a genre that both celebrated and critiqued Britain and British nationalism. Examines how the novel has been important culturally over time. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement.
This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts
Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 248 British, American, and Continental Fiction credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/248)
This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts

ENGL 250 Nineteenth-Century American Fiction credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/250)
Nineteenth-century fiction gave us some of the most iconic images in American culture—the scarlet letter, the white whale—and some of the most captivating works about American life and society. This course will explore how fictional texts articulated the problems of nineteenth-century democracy, including the crises over slavery leading to the Civil War, and the rise of large-scale capitalism and urban modernity later in the century. We will look at such literary movements as sentimentalism, sensationalism, realism, and naturalism, among others. Writers studied might include Herman Melville, Edith Wharton, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Henry James, Charles Chesnutt, Mark Twain, Pauline Hopkins, Catharine Maria Sedgwick, and many others. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement.
This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts

ENGL 251 The Twentieth-Century American Novel credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/251)
Critical study of selected American novels from the twentieth century. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement.
This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts
Cultural Studies - Western

ENGL 253 Topics in Literature and New Media credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/253)
Introduction to the role technological invention has played in history of print media and how literary aesthetics are changing with the advent of new media, such as software, video games, and graphic novels. We will consider material formats, genres, and modes of production along with the cultural, political, and societal implications of different forms and formats. May be repeated in separate terms up to 6 hours. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for: Humanities - Lit Arts
ENGL 255  Early American Literature and Culture  credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/255)

ENGL 259  Early African American Literature and Culture  credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/259)
An introduction to the study of early African American literary and cultural production, ranging from the earliest writings by African descended people in British North America in the eighteenth century to the end of World War I. At each turn, we will situate texts in their cultural and historical contexts, attending not only to the specificity of a particular text's moment, but also to the forces of contingency and tradition at play in the construction of literary, cultural, and political communities. Throughout our discussions we will think about both the "African-ness" and "American-ness" of African American literature as collective and imaginative processes. Early African Americans wrote for a variety of reasons—philosophical, political, pleasurable, instrumental—and protesting slavery and racism was just one (albeit an important one) among many of those reasons. We will read letters, poems, sermons, songs, constitutions and bylaws for religious and civic organizations, stories, and texts that defy easy categorization. Writers may include Phillis Wheatley, David Walker, Maria Stewart, Frederick Douglass, Harriet Jacobs, Frances E.W. Harper, William Wells Brown, W.E.B. Du Bois, Pauline Hopkins, Charles Chesnutt, Paul Lawrence Dunbar, Alice Dunbar Nelson, and Ida B. Wells. Same as AFRO 259 and CWL 259. Prerequisite: Completion of the Composition I requirement.

ENGL 398  Honors Seminar III  credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/398)
Major British, American, and Anglophone authors. Each seminar considers one or two major authors. May be repeated. Prerequisite: A 3.33 grade-point average or consent of the English Department's Director of Undergraduate Studies. Restricted to English and Rhetoric majors.

ENGL 400  Senior Capstone Seminar  credit: 3 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/400)
In this senior-year capstone required for students in the Topics in English major (and optional for those in English and English Teaching concentrations), students will work in dialogue with their classmates and professor to develop a major project of their own design: a single thesis-like paper, an electronic project, or a connected portfolio of smaller projects. Capstone projects will consolidate students' previous study of English and help each student assess what they have learned, bringing their studies to a sense of completion and providing a direction for their future interests. 3 undergraduate hours. No graduate credit. Prerequisite: Restricted to senior English majors.

ENGL 402  Descriptive English Grammar  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/402)
An introduction to English linguistics with emphasis on the phonetic, syntactic, and semantic structures of English; language variation, standardization, and change; language legislation and linguistic rights; English as a world language; and the study of language in American schools. Same as BTW 402. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours.

ENGL 404  Engl Grammar for ESL Teachers  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/404)
Same as EIL 422. See EIL 422.

ENGL 407  Introduction to Old English  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/407)
Introduction to the form of English spoken and written prior to about AD 1100. Exploring concepts of cultural, historical, and linguistic change, students will learn to read Old English texts in the original. Readings include examples from the prose tradition (e.g., Bede's story of the poet Caedmon and the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle) as well as poetic texts (e.g., The Dream of the Rood and The Wanderer). Same as MDVL 407. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours.

ENGL 411  Chaucer  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/411)
A selection of Chaucer's major works read in Middle English. Instructors will usually emphasize either the Canterbury Tales or Troilus and Criseyde and the dream visions, but alternate combinations of texts are possible. Students will also be introduced to Chaucer's fourteenth-century context. Same as MDVL 411. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 412  Topics in Medieval British and Irish Literature  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/412)
Advanced topics course exploring the literatures of medieval Britain and Ireland, concentrating on texts in Old and/or Middle English but with some attention to Celtic, French, Latin, and Norse texts in translation. Same as CWL 417 and MDVL 410. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. May be repeated with permission of English advising office to a maximum of 6 undergraduate hours if topics vary; Graduate students may repeat if topics vary. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 416  Topics in British Drama to 1660  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/416)
Advanced topics course devoted to dramatic practice in the medieval and/or early modern British Isles. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. May be repeated with permission of English advising office to a maximum of 6 undergraduate hours if topics vary; Graduate students may repeat if topics vary. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 418  Shakespeare  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/418)
Survey of the plays and poems of William Shakespeare. Reading assignments will reflect the generic diversity and historical breadth of Shakespeare's work. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 421  Renaissance Poetry and Prose  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/421)
Advanced study of poetry and prose written between the reign of Elizabeth I and the late seventeenth century. Authors may include Philip Sidney, Edmund Spenser, Ben Jonson, Mary Wroth, John Donne, Katherine Philips, Andrew Marvell, Margaret Cavendish, and others. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 423  Milton  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/423)
3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 427  Eighteenth-Century Literature  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/427)
Advanced study of British literature between 1660 (the restoration of Charles II to the throne) and 1800. The course focuses on poems, plays, novels, and nonfiction works from the period, paying particular attention to issues of gender relations, colonialism, imperial expansion, the slave trade, and class tensions. Writers covered may include Aphra Behn, Mary Astell, Joseph Addison, Bernard Mandeville, Alexander Pope, Daniel Defoe, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, Eliza Heywood, Jonathan Swift, Samuel Richardson, Henry Fielding, Charlotte Lennox, Samuel Johnson, Laurence Sterne, Olaudah Equiano, Charlotte Smith, Mary Wollstonecraft, and others. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 428  British Drama, 1660-1800  credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/428)
Focused study of the major male and female playwrights who wrote between 1660 (the reopening of the theaters after the Interregnum) and roughly 1800. Particular attention will be devoted to the social, cultural, political, and economic contexts of theatrical performance, and to the major issues dealt with on the London stage: sexual morality, the role of women in a patrilineal society, and the problems of empire, trade, and colonialism. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.
ENGL 429 Eighteenth-Century Fiction credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/429)
Focused study of British and Anglophone fiction in the eighteenth century. Authors may include Defoe, Swift, Haywood, Fielding, Richardson, Sterne, Burney, Walpole, Radcliffe, and others. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 431 Topics in British Romantic Literature credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/431)

ENGL 435 Nineteenth-Century British Fiction credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/435)
From Jane Austen's witty couples to Charles Dickens's haunted reformers and Bram Stoker's aristocratic vampires, the characters, stories, and novels created by British writers in the nineteenth century still fascinate us today. This research class gives students a chance to read deeply in the prose fiction of this period; texts may include William Thackeray's Vanity Fair, Emily Brontë's Wuthering Heights, Oscar Wilde's The Picture of Dorian Gray, Wilkie Collins's The Moonstone, and Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. May be repeated with permission of English advising office to a maximum of 6 undergraduate hours if topics vary; Graduate students may repeat if topics vary. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 441 Innovation and Conflict in British and Irish Modernism credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/441)
This course will examine British and Irish modernism, one of the most dynamic, provocative, and experimental periods in literary history. The early decades of the twentieth century witnessed the rapid introduction of new technologies, the upheaval of global politics, the radical transformation of gender roles, and the traumatic fallout from two world wars. The period's literature and art processed these turbulent cultural experiences through extreme formal experimentation, and this course will consider many of the key works emerging from the modernist and avant-garde movements. Among the authors we'll study are Joseph Conrad, W. B. Yeats, James Joyce, Virginia Woolf, T.S. Eliot, Charlie Chaplin, and Samuel Beckett. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 442 Contemporary British and Irish Literature credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/442)
This course considers how the unresolved problems of the past continue to haunt the literature of contemporary Britain, Ireland, and the postcolonial Anglophone world. These "returns of the repressed" range from personal traumas and difficult truths that have not been fully processed to groups of people who have suffered systematic inequality and violence. The texts we will read in ENGL 442 address the traumatic collapse of the post-war British empire, focusing not only on Britain's uneasy relationship to immigrants and postcolonial subjects but also on shifting gender roles, changing conceptions of sexual identity, and anxieties about literature's continued relevance in the context of new media. Readings may include works by Pat Barker, Kazuo Ishiguro, Ian McEwan, Hanif Kureishi, Zadie Smith, Tom McCarthy, Angela Carter, and Jeanette Winterson. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 449 American Romanticism credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/449)
Inspired by waves of radical thought and experimental writing that swept across Europe around 1800, Romanticism came late to America and stayed longer than it did across the Atlantic. This class examines the period known as "American Romanticism" (1820-1865), which saw the rise of a rich national literature even as the nation itself teetered on the edge of collapse, tested by economic panics, westward expansion, brawling electoral politics, and fierce debates over the future of slavery. Writers appearing in this course might include Washington Irving, Frederick Douglass, Edgar Allan Poe, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Harriet Jacobs, Henry David Thoreau, Herman Melville, Fanny Fern, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Walt Whitman, and Emily Dickinson. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 450 Becoming Modern: American Literature, 1865-1914 credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/450)
After the Civil War the United States entered a period of accelerating modernization and change. This course addresses how the nation's writers helped build modern America in response to a host of exciting and daunting developments in economics, science, and politics, including the enfranchisement of African Americans, Jim Crow segregation laws, growing income inequality, the rise of unions and anarchist movements, the invention of the automobile and the department store, new sciences such as including Darwinism and psychoanalysis, and American empire-building in places like Hawai'i and the Philippines. Writers studied might include Emily Dickinson, Mark Twain, Henry James, Booker T. Washington, W.E.B. DuBois, Zitkala-Sa, Stephen Crane, William Dean Howells, and Edith Wharton. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.

ENGL 451 American Literature in the Age of Modernism credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/451)
American literature in the age of Modernism includes some of the most influential and provocative writing in the nation's history. American writers responded to a series of upheavals including changing gender and race relations, World War I, the "Roaring Twenties" and the Great Depression by pursuing both boundary-breaking themes and revolutionary experiments in form. Readings will include a generous selection from such writers as Ernest Hemingway, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Robert Frost, Willa Cather, Gertrude Stein, Wallace Stevens, William Carlos Williams, T. S. Eliot, Langston Hughes, Dorothy Parker, Anita Loos, William Faulkner, Nella Larsen, Zora Neale Hurston, Dashiel Hammett, D'Arcy McNickle, Carson McCullers, and many others. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.
ENGL 452  The Postwar Era and Contemporary American Literature credit: 3 or 4 Hours. (https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/ENGL/452)
Examines American literature from the end of WWII to today, an era when U.S. society, politics, and culture came under pressure from such upheavals as the feminist movement, the Civil Rights movement, the Cold War, Vietnam, and the rise of neoliberalism—all of them occurring under the ever-present threat of nuclear annihilation. While writers struggled with the changes and dangers of a nation and world in such unprecedented flux, the poetry, plays, fiction, memoirs, and films they produced in response to this new precariousness forged a fertile artistic moment, in popular literature that sustained previous traditions (in realism, science fiction, children's literature, and romance) and in an avant-garde opposed to all forms of social and literary conformity. Writers studied might include Gwendolyn Brooks, Thomas Pynchon, Amiri Baraka, David Foster Wallace, Toni Morrison, Tony Kushner, Ursula K. Le Guin, and Alice Walker. 3 undergraduate hours. 4 graduate hours. Prerequisite: One year of college literature or consent of instructor.
