The Department of Media and Cinema Studies in the College of Media offers a B.S. Degree in Media and Cinema Studies. Students in the Media and Cinema Studies program have the option to declare a thematic specialization from Cinema Studies, Media Industries & Culture, Difference & Power, Science Technology, & Visualization, Global Media & Cinema, Sport Media, and Media Making, Design, & Research. The department also offers an undergraduate Minor in Cinema Studies, a graduate Minor in Cinema Studies, and a Certificate in SportMedia.

Students in the Media and Cinema Studies program develop an understanding of modern communications, media, and cinema from an interdisciplinary perspective. They explore the theory behind contemporary media and the origins, structures and implications for our society. Students also address the history of media and cinema both in the United States and internationally. The development of all mediated forms is considered in light of more general concerns about technology, culture, society, and politics.

For the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Media and Cinema Studies

To graduate from the media and cinema studies curriculum, a student must meet all general University and College requirements for the degree and must complete the following courses, all of which must be taken for a traditional letter grade and for which all prerequisites will be enforced.

Courses

MACS 100 Intro to Popular TV & Movies credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/100>)

The goal of this course is for students to begin to develop a critical understanding of the role of popular movies and television in their own lives and in U.S. culture. The course looks at issues of the relationship of media to social violence, gender identities, sexual identities, adolescents, minority cultures, and the role of the U.S. media globally. It also considers some of the major media genres that characterize U.S. popular television and movies.

This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for:
 Humanities - Lit Arts
 Cultural Studies - Western

MACS 101 Intro to the Media credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/101>)
Introduces students to core issues in communication, ranging from the role of language in human history to political questions posed by electronic and digital technologies. Exploring key contemporary problems through timely readings, students learn and write about how the media affect everyday life. Prerequisite: Freshman or sophomore standing. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for:
Advanced Composition

MACS 104 Intro to Film credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/104>)
Same as ENGL 104. See ENGL 104.
This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for:
Humanities - Lit Arts

MACS 117 Shakespeare on Film credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/117>)

This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for:
Humanities - Lit Arts

MACS 166 Contemporary Media Literacy credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/166>)
Develops critical media production skills to assess the importance of new media in contemporary culture. The course emphasizes both social and technical aspects of media. As part of the course, students prepare their own media and evaluate current media literacy projects. This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for:
Social Beh Sci - Soc Sci

MACS 199 Undergraduate Open Seminar credit: 1 to 5 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/199>)
May be repeated to a maximum of 12 hours in separate semesters if topics vary.

MACS 202 Social Aspects Info Tech credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/202>)
Same as INFO 202 and IS 202. See INFO 202.
This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for:
Social Beh Sci - Soc Sci

MACS 203 Contemporary Movies credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/203>)
Provides a critical context for recent international cinema by exploring several kinds of genres, aesthetics, and technologies. We will discuss transnational trends in cinema relating to the influence of other media such as gaming, social networking, and personal electronics, as well as consider impacts of economic structures of global filmmaking production and exhibition. We will view popular and art movies, and query longstanding categories such as the teen pic, "woman's" film, and documentary.

MACS 204 Gender in Gaming credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/204>)
Same as ENGL 277 and GWS 204. See GWS 204.

MACS 205 Introduction to Documentary credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/205>)
This course introduces students to one of the fastest growing areas in media today: the documentary. It's designed for students who want to expand their knowledge and appreciation of documentaries in all their forms. Using weekly in-class screenings, discussion, readings, and writing, students will examine a wide variety of documentaries, looking at their styles, purposes, and storytelling "voices", as well as learning the language and other fundamentals of documentary. We will also cover some of the basic methods involved in planning and creating a documentary. Please note: this is NOT a hands-on production course. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing or above required.

MACS 207 Indian Cinema in Context credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/207>)

MACS 211 Intro to African-American Film credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/211>)
Examination of the history, theory, and aesthetics of African-American filmmaking from the silent era to the present. Films are analyzed within their sociocultural contexts, with particular attention to how constructions of race, identity, and community interact with class, gender, and sexuality; and the link between film and other forms of Black expressive culture. The impact of African-American film on popular culture, links to the African Diaspora, and relations with other communities of color will also be discussed. Same as AFRO 211.
This course satisfies the General Education Criteria for:
Cultural Studies - US Minority

MACS 224 Sportsmedia Technology & Culture credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/224>)
This course is designed for students who are curious about (a) how new technologies are changing sportsmedia cultures, and (b) the kinds of knowledges and skills needed to effectively engage with this powerful cultural and economic industry. We'll use four primary focal points (ESPN, Sport Fandom, Action-Sports, Data Production / Smart Stadiums) to help us understand today's sportsmedia cultural industry's challenges and possibilities, and the kinds of challenges and possibilities that the sportsmedia cultural industry creates for society. We'll also use our course focal points and related industry websites to concretize the key concepts (drawn from theoretical readings and applied studies in media studies, sociology, sport studies, and technology studies).

MACS 227 Studies in Black Television credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/227>)

MACS 323 Studies Film/Media Production credit: 1 to 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/323>)

Provides analytical framework for pursuing film/media production. Emphasizes critical analysis of various aspects of production: e.g., scriptwriting, storyboarding, cinematography, editing, set and costume design, location and studio shooting, sound. Covers theories of representation, narrative, meaning-making, experimentation, and audience in relation to film/media production practices. Does not, however, teach students how to do film and media production (e.g., how to work a camera, etc.). Therefore, students must come to the course with experience in film and/or media production (can be self-taught). Both individual and group projects are encouraged. Students should expect to work as crew for other students in class. Culminates in a public screening at which students present an analysis of their own project—both the process and the finished product. To apply for course, students (individually or in groups) must propose an idea or concept for a film/media project they would like to produce during the class. May be repeated in separate terms to a maximum of 6 hours. May be repeated by students who wish to pursue a longer project in two consecutive semesters (may include summer). Students may not repeat the course to pursue separate projects. Prerequisite: Consent of instructor.

MACS 326 New Media, Culture & Society credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/326>)

Digital media is an immensely pervasive and powerful form of communication that despite its rapid growth has yet to reach most of the world's population. This lecture-based survey course for undergraduates traces the history and formation of personal computing and the Internet, the development of virtual communities and virtual worlds, evolving forms of digital representation and communication, digital visual cultures, features of new media industries, and the rise of participatory media. Evaluation and assessment is based on written exams, quizzes, class discussion in section, and practice-based assignments using new media technologies such as wikis, blogs, games, and digital video. Emphasis is on mastering key concepts of digital media through theory and history, and on critical discussion of distinctive features of digital media objects. Lectures and discussion sections are held in computer-equipped classrooms. Same as INFO 326.

MACS 331 Media and Democracy credit: 3 Hours. (<https://courses.illinois.edu/schedule/terms/MACS/331>)
