The Minor in Media offers students breadth and depth in the study of media in the 21st century. Students take one introductory course in each of three disciplines in the College of Media (Advertising, Journalism, and Media & Cinema Studies), for a total of 9 hours. Completion of the minor requires an additional 9 hours of advanced (300- and 400-level) courses coming from at least two different departments within the College of Media. Thematic areas have been designed to help students pursuing the Media Minor choose classes that align with student interest and career goals. Themes are suggestions and students are not required to choose a theme to complete the Media Minor.

Students pursuing a major in the College of Media are not eligible for a minor in Media.
